Waterfront facilities

This book, published by the Philadelphia Port Corporation and the Delaware River Port Authority, World Trade Division, contains aerial photographs showing the Port's marine terminals, as well as waterfront property located along the banks of the Delaware River and its estuaries, including those marine facilities within the cities of Philadelphia, Camden and Wilmington. Identification has been inserted on the photographs and related information is carried on the facing pages. Additional copies are available from the Philadelphia Port Corporation at cost.

Ameriport
PORTS OF PHILADELPHIA

Ameriport in Perspective

AMERIPORT, THE PORTS OF PHILADELPHIA, is a complex of port cities along both banks of the Delaware River between Wilmington, Delaware and Trenton, New Jersey. AMERIPORT handles over 125 million tons of waterborne commerce annually making it the second largest industrial port in the United States and third largest industrial port in the world. Within this complex, PHILADELPHIA is the largest port city, with the greatest concentration of general, bulk cargo, and container facilities and services.

The PHILADELPHIA PORT CORPORATION was created in 1965 for the purpose of constructing new marine terminals, improving the existing terminals and to assist in the promotion of AMERIPORT. The Corporation is a quasi-public agency of the City of Philadelphia, Commonwealth of Pennsylvania and the Greater Philadelphia Chamber of Commerce. All Corporation facilities are owned by the City and financed by City general obligation bonds. Both the City of Philadelphia and the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania appropriate operating funds annually to the Corporation whose affairs are directed by an unpaid Board of thirty-three members representing the City, State, business community and the Delaware River Port Authority. The Corporation works closely with all segments of the community, public and private, in its port expansion responsibility.

The SOUTH JERSEY PORT CORPORATION is an agency for port development purposes in the seven Southern New Jersey counties. The Camden Marine and the Broadway Terminals are owned and operated by the Corporation.

The PORT OF WILMINGTON Marine Terminal is owned and operated by the City of Wilmington, Delaware, through the City's Board of Harbor Commissioners.

The DELAWARE RIVER PORT AUTHORITY is responsible for the market development and promotion of waterborne commerce in AMERIPORT-PORTS OF PHILADELPHIA. The Port Authority carries on port planning, industrial development, traffic, research and promotional activities. It maintains an experienced staff in regional trade development offices located in Philadelphia, New York, Pittsburgh, Washington, Chicago, Bogota, London, Antwerp, Milan, Tokyo and Hong Kong.

The port is recognized as the area's most valuable economic asset, providing thousands of jobs and millions of dollars in economic benefits. It is served by three trunkline railroads, hundreds of motor carriers, major steamship lines and thirty foreign freight forwarders and custom house brokers. There are eight banks with international departments, thirty-one foreign consuls, packing and crating firms, stevedores, steamship agents, tug boat companies, ship chandlers and myriad other port-oriented services. Waterfront labor is efficient and dependable.

AMERIPORT is located at the center of the heaviest concentration of population, industry and wealth in the United States. It is an ideal import, export and distribution point.

HEAVY LIFT FACILITIES

Most of the marine terminals in the Ports of Philadelphia have facilities for handling lifts of average weight. Pier charts in this handbook indicate crane capacities at the various piers. For the exceptionally heavy lifts, the Philadelphia Naval Shipyard has a 350-ton crane. Special permission is required to use this machine when there are no commercial facilities available. (Contact Delaware River Port Authority for directory of supplementary crane service.)

In addition to the facilities available on the various piers, the following companies or organizations have cranes for rent:
